

Running away, I ended up on the coast near an area where there is a lot of rubbish. The water smells bad, and there are many ugly and strange things that I do not know about. I am dizzy and feel like vomiting.

To learn more: Pollution is one of the problems that plankton must face daily. Plastics, cigarettes, and other solid waste are examples. However, what most affects plankton are the substances diluted in the water. Heavy metals, pharmacological products, plasticizers, hydrocarbons, etc., form a long list of examples. Any of them, at high concentrations, can be very harmful to marine life.
