

Marina and I are very happy together. We also have quite a few friends. For example, this one with a spike on the nape of the neck and such a long nose is called Ricardo, but we all call him Pinocchio, although he does not like it too much and he gets angry when we called him that. He is still young, and when he gets older he will be a crab. We are also friends with Estella, the one with the long and thin spikes, who is a juvenile of a sort of starfish.

To learn more: Plankton are composed by organisms such as copepods, which are always part of the plankton, and others that only go through some phases of their life cycle, such as the larvae of crabs, starfish, mollusks, etc.
